As well as obliging the twenty major companies to establish a special investor relations unit due to the importance of the role played by investor relations in opening effective bilateral communication channels with relevant financial analysts, investors, media representatives, shareholders and others, and transferring information and opinions from and to the board of directors and senior executive management in the company, which leads to strengthening the relationship with current and potential investors and reaching a fair pricing of the company's shares.

During the FEAS Board of Directors meeting, new members were accepted into the federation, as the International Trading System Company was approved to join as a full member and the swissQuant Group AG as an associate member in the Federation.

It's worth mentioning that the FEAS was established on May 16, 1995 and includes 12 founding members. Its purpose is to contribute to the cooperation, development, support and promotion of capital markets in the Euro- Asian region (i.e. Europe, Asia and the Mediterranean Basin).
